

Heather C. Noonan
Vice President for Advocacy
League of American Orchestras

Heather Noonan is the Vice President for Advocacy for the League of American Orchestras. From the League's Washington, D.C. office, Heather represents orchestras in the arenas of government funding, education reform, international cultural activity, and nonprofit and philanthropic policies, and leads the League's efforts to increase orchestras' local advocacy capacity. Heather is a co-convenor of the Cultural Advocacy Group of national arts, humanities, and cultural stakeholders that collaborate year-round to advance federal policy priorities, is on the national policy advisory committee for the National Council of Nonprofits, and represents global music interests on immigration, aviation, and protected species issues related to international performing artist mobility.